23rd OHNNG Annual Conference

March 22nd to 24th 2019 Brisbane

Although it seems such a long time ago now the 23rd annual OHNNG conference was held at the Brisbane Convention and Exhibition Centre in March.

I was very happy with all aspects of the conference and it seems most other delegates were too. I have now collated the evaluation form responses and they are available for your perusal on the OHNNG website <https://www.ohnng.com.au/welcome/>. I welcome any other feedback from the conference to president@ohnng.com.au. Also, please send through any ideas for topics, discussions, bags, inclusions for the 2020 event.

For those planning on attending the 2020 conference -

Save the date - March 13 to 15 at the International Convention Centre, Sydney.

If you deal with adult or paediatric tracheostomy patients I would encourage you to consider attending this one-day symposium. Especially relevant for those who facilitate discharging patients with tracheostomies. This opportunity to participate in the Global Tracheostomy Collaborative international meeting will not be repeated for several years!

Nurses caring for patients dealing with head and neck cancer this conference is for you. This is a great mix of surgical, oncology, radiology and allied health topics in relation to H&N cancer. This year one of the keynote international speakers is Dr Cherith Semple - Reader in Clinical Cancer Nursing, Ulster University and South Eastern Health and Social Care Trust, Belfast, Northern Ireland. A rare opportunity to hear from a presenter with almost twenty years' experience in head and neck cancer nursing and research!

Why not apply for an OHNNG scholarship to attend?

OHNNG Tasmania is hosting a paediatric ENT education event on 1st August.

The one day program is packed with content and would be valuable for all paediatric nurses.

I would encourage all mainland nurses to consider heading to Hobart for this day.

Scholarships applications welcome!

Don't forget to keep an eye on the website www.ohnng.com.au - noticeboard - events for all upcoming education opportunities.
